'SECRET DIPLOMACY' IS RESORTED TO BY ALLIES AND TEUTONS

BOTH SIDES REALIZE IMPORTANCE OF REACHING AN AGREEMENT SOON

SUB-ROSA NEGOTIATIONS MAY RESULT IN AN UNDERSTANDING ON MATTERS

CARL D. GROAT

(United Press Staff Correspondent.) London, March 5.—The entente and German representatives have resorted to "secret diplomacy" in an effort to avert resumption of hostilities on Monday when the allied ultimatum expires for acceptance of the reparation demands.

Both sides apparently realize the importance of reaching an agreement and hope through sub-rosa negotiations to attain an understanding. Neither want a breach, but on the contrary are doing everything possible to patch up steps regarding an agreement over the week end.

After several unsuccessful efforts throughout the night to communicate with Sigmund Bergman, one of Germany's financial experts, Premier Lloyd George's office finally got in touch with him early today. That the premier took an initiative in arranging this conference is possibly known to me only, because of my chance of acting as interpreter for a German woman clerk concerned in the negotiations whose knowledge of English is deficient.

The German delegation now have reports of the deliberations by the cabinet in Berlin yesterday. While this report was not made public it was said the cabinet had no intention of ignoring the recommendation of its representatives here. There are no indications now that Foreign Minister Von Simons may have to return to Berlin for a conference with his superiors.

Cabinet Backs Up Delegation
The German cabinet has unanimously opposed acceptance of the allied reparation demands, the German delegation were informed today. The cabinet met in Berlin yesterday and the result of its deliberation was transmitted to the delegation here early in the day.

The allied demands agreed upon at Paris, and communicated to the German delegation here this week, calls for payment of $55,000,000,000. The German counter proposal fixed the amount at only $7,290,000,000.

SEN. L. H. NORD DIED OF APOPLEXY

(United Press.) St. Paul, March 5.—Senator Leonard H. Nord died shortly after midnight, sixty hours after he suffered a stroke of apoplexy at his hotel here.

Senator Nord was born in Norway and came to the United States with his widowed mother in 1881. With the exception of his home study in the vicinity of International Falls during the last few years he called the twin cities his home.

He entered politics in 1915 and was elected to the legislature from Koochiching county. He has been a champion of good roads, land settling and better schools.

May Call Special Election
A special election may be called immediately to fill the place of State Senator Leonard H. Nord, who died early today.

Lieut. Gov. Collins today was considering calling a special election at once in the absence of Governor J. A. O. Preus, who is in Washington. The legislature will be in session only about forty days more, and many are anxious to fill the vacancy as quickly as possible. The funeral of Senator Nord will be held Tuesday morning.

Britain's Coronation Stone.
The Stone of Destiny once rested within the walls of Dunstaffnage castle. The stone is better known in England as the Coronation stone. Whatever its origin, tradition has it that it was brought by Symon Brek from Spain to Ireland and was from there taken to Argyll and placed in Dunstaffnage, where it remained till Kenneth McAlpin, the first king of the Picts and Scots, transported it to Scone in Gowry about the year 850, where it remained till 1296, when it was removed by Edward I to Westminster abbey, where it now rests beneath the coronation chair.—Christian Science Monitor.

CHASING RAINBOWS IS SUM TOTAL RESULTS

(By United Press)

St. Paul, March 5.—Federal agents admitted they were chasing rainbows today. Half a dozen reports from widely separated towns that Delbert Smith alleged train robber, had been seen yesterday, failed to develop.

Within a few hours Smith had been reported captured in Iowa, at four different points in Wisconsin and at Little Falls, Minn. At last, but not the most hopeless was the report that he was ready to give himself up to federal authorities here.

He is wanted for taking nearly $60,000 from a Northern Pacific mail car near St. Cloud, February 1 and fatally wounding Mail Clerk Z. E. Strong. Three women with whom he was intimate are under arrest and face arraignment Monday charged with complicity. Officials recovered $50,000 of the money after locating the women.

CHEERING PUNCTUATED INAUGURAL SPEECH OF HARDING

PRESIDENT-ELECT SPOKE IN A FIRM, RESONANT VOICE TO 50,000 PEOPLE

NEAR HIM WERE OFFICIALS OF GOVERNMENT, FOREIGN REPRESENTATIVES, ETC.

(By United Press)

Washington, D. C., March 5.—At 1:19 p. m. yesterday Warren G. Harding of Ohio repeated in a clear, firm voice the oath of office as president of the United States.

Before the cheering had died away Harding stepped forward and extended his arms in a gesture embracing the whole crowd of fifty thousand spectators who were standing before him, and started his inaugural address.

Ten feet away with her eyes upon his face stood Mrs. Harding. Grouped about her were officials of his government, representatives of foreign nations and vast throngs of plain every day Americans.

It was just five minutes from the hour when Harding stepped upon the inaugural stand at the east front of the capitol until the moment when with uplifted hands he became the chief executive of the nation.

Harding's voice, as he spoke his inaugural address from a manuscript cut into narrow passages, was firm resonant and a trifle husky. His speech repeatedly found approval from the throng, testifying that his words were carried to the very edge of the vast mob.

Calvin Coolidge stood at Harding's left as the new president spoke. Mrs. Coolidge was directly behind Mrs. Harding, whose interest in her husband's speech was noted by onlookers.

Not a sound came from the crowd except occasional outbursts of applause.

This applause was constantly signalled from the inaugural stand by a certain official who banged his foot against the side of the stand a little in advance of the conclusion of Harding's climaxes.

Attorney General Palmer and Postmaster General Burleson were the only members of Wilson's cabinet visible in the crowd. Both were standing with the democratic senators, of whom there were a large number.

Mrs. Harding nodded her head in approval of many of Harding's statements, notably that against war profiteering and slackness in time of national danger.

A few minutes after Harding began to speak a woman fainted within ten feet of the stand. Mrs. Harding noting the occurrence, leaned over the railing and showed deep concern. The woman was given first aid by a marine medical officer. A secret service man who had been called by Mrs. Harding, went into the crowd to inquire what the trouble was.

The woman was a Mrs. Davenport, member of a party of guests of Mrs. John K. Shields, wife of a senator from Tennessee.

Harding broke into the text of his speech to say, "I want to stop for a moment, to say that these wounded soldiers and sailors here today, shall never be forgotten. We hope for a government in the future that will leave no maimed men to take their places in future inaugurations."

Harding concluded his address at 1:55.

He was immediately surrounded by senators and members of the party. Vice President Coolidge was the first to congratulate him on his speech. Mrs. Harding was visibly affected. Tears stood in her eyes as she turned to look over the crowd. The band played America. The crowd thronged toward the north corner of the stand to get a close up view of Harding as he entered the machine for the trip to the White House.

66TH CONGRESS CHECKED OUT AFTER A BUSY TIME

DYING HOURS OF CONGRESS BROUGHT DEATH TO FORDNEY TARIFF BILL

PRES. WILSON'S VETO MESSAGE ON SAME STOOD, HOUSE FAILING TO OVERRIDE IT

HERBERT WALKER

United Press Staff Correspondent.

Washington, March 4.—The sixty-sixth congress after two of the busiest peace time years on record checked out yesterday.

Working at top speed for the last two weeks it came within one notch of reaching the goal set by Harding—the passage of all appropriation bills. The naval bill was the only one that they failed to pass.

The dying hours of congress brought death to the Fordney emergency tariff bill. President Wilson's veto message of the measure stood when the house early yesterday failed to override. The vote was 201 to 132, or 21 less than the necessary two-thirds.

The legislative work was completed shortly after two o'clock yesterday morning. Both houses reassembled shortly before noon so that presiding officers could sign engrossed copies of the bills jammed through in the closing hours, but no legislation was considered.

2 IMPORTANT BILLS KILLED BY VETO

(United Press)

Washington, March 4.—Two more important bills passed by congress at the past session were killed by the pocket veto of President Wilson.

The president refused to sign the bill restricting immigration during the period from April 1, 1921 to July 1, 1922 to three per cent of the aliens here in 1919.

The pocket veto also caught the army appropriation bill which provides for an army of 156,566 during the next fiscal year.

The soldier hospital bill was signed. This makes $18,500,000 immediately available for hospital construction.

(United Press)

Fletcher, Chief Clerk Davis and other officials of the state department were inducted after Hughes.

A. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, came to his office at 10:35. He was sworn in yesterday. Former Secretary Houston met him and took him about the treasury building.

The induction of Hughes was followed shortly by Secretary of War John W. Weeks as new secretary of war. The oath was administered in the presence of Newton D. Baker, retiring secretary, and all high officials of the war department paid their respects to their new head.

Former Senator Albert B. Fall of New Mexico, new secretary of the interior, was sworn in at 10:15. The oath of office was administered by Associate Justice McReynolds of the United States supreme court.

MEDIATION PLANNED IN BUILDING STRIKE

(By United Press)

St. Paul, March 5.—Mayor Hodgson and city attorney and councilmen today sought to offer a mediation in the friction between building contractors and union workers which has tied up the building operations.

They held an executive conference with representatives of the building trades and while no offers of mediation were made, it was indicated the city fathers will be willing to try it if the opportunity was present. Union leaders said they would willingly receive overtures from contractors for a conference which might enable them to get together. They asserted that they would stand firm against what they called the propaganda work of employers in reducing wages 20 per cent prior to May 1, when the present contract expires.

They said it was part of a national campaign against labor to reduce wages.

AMERICAN WAR VESSELS TO PANAMA

(United Press)

Washington, March 5.—American war vessels today were dispatched to the coast of Panama and Costa Rica to protect any American interests which might be endangered in hostilities between those two countries, the navy department announced.

PRES. HARDING SETTLES DOWN FOR WORK AT HIS DESK

ONE BIG JOB FACING HIM WAS OF PASSING ON BIDS FOR 50,000 JOBS

HARDING EXPECTS TO CONSULT CABINET MEMBERS REGARDING ASSISTANTS

RAYMOND CLAPPER

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, March 5.—President Harding settled down for work at his desk in the executive office adjoining the White House today.

One big job facing him was that of passing out jobs—some fifty thousand of which are ultimately being filled from a list of applications several times as large. But only a few of the most important will receive attention today.

Harding expects to consult his cabinet members regarding the assistant secretaries of various departments. Theodore Roosevelt has already been named assistant secretary of the navy. Ex-Congressman Thomas W. Miller of Delaware is mentioned as possible under secretary of war. He saw service in France and was active in organization of the American Legion.

Henry P. Fletcher, former ambassador to Mexico, has been chosen under secretary of state, but there are three assistant secretaryships to be filled.

Two vacancies in the interstate commerce commission; the entire seven places on the shipping board; five on the federal reserve board; three on the United States tariff commission; two on the federal trade commission; four on the federal farm loan board and several on the railroad labor board are to be filled in the near future.

J. J. Esch, defeated for re-election to congress from Wisconsin in November, will be offered a place on the interstate commerce commission.

President Harding will leave the filling of thousands of postmasterships and minor appointive positions to cabinet members.

The big diplomatic appointments are expected within a short time. Many of the lesser diplomatic appointments will be allowed to remain at their posts, it is understood, it being Harding's purpose to recognize ability in the diplomatic staff.

WIRES OLD SCHOOL FOR BANK STENO

One of the first things F. S. Dundas did when elected cashier of the Security State Bank, Fairview, Mont., was to wire Dakota Business College, Fargo, N. D., for a capable stenographer-bookkeeper. Mr. Dundas was himself a pupil of this old-established school which has graduates in nearly 600 banks. Over 200 ex-pupils have become bank executives. Big firms in all lines prefer Dakota-trained employees.

LEGEND OF 'SEVEN SLEEPERS'

Of Syrian Origin, the Story Has Always Been Widely Current in Eastern Countries.

The quotation from Dickens' Christmas Carol, about the "other six" sleepers, is a playful reference to the legend of "The Seven Sleepers of Ephesus." The legend goes back to the time of the persecution of the Christians during the reign of the Roman emperor Decius. According to the story seven Christians fled from Ephesus in Asia Minor in the year 250 or 251, and hid in a cave. There they were discovered, and their persecutors walked up the entrance in order to starve them to death. The seven fell into a sleep in which they lay for nearly 200 years, for it was not until the reign of Emperor Theodosius II (447) that they awoke, believing that they had slept but a single night.

One of the seven went into the city to buy provisions, and he was amazed to see crosses on the churches and other buildings, for while they had been asleep Christianity had made great progress.

Offering a coin of the time of the Emperor Decius in a baker's shop, he was arrested, his startling story not being believed until he guided the citizens to the cavern where he had left his comrades. The emperor heard from their lips enough to convince him of the life beyond the grave, whereupon they sank again to sleep till the resurrection. This legend is of Syrian origin—it is widely current in the East, and was adopted by Mohammed, who even admits the Seven Sleepers' dog Kitmer, into paradise. In some parts of the world the festival of the Seven Sleepers is held on June 27. The names usually given to the Seven Sleepers are: Maximilian, Matheus, Martinianus, Dionysius, Joannes, Serapion and Constantius.

Egyptian Worship of the Sun.

The Egyptians were, early in their history (about 4000 B. C.), attracted by this light of the sun. They evolved their religion on the thesis that life was given by the sun. It was the heat that he gave that caused all things to grow, and he gave to man warmth and comfort. So they created the god of the sun, and called him Ra-Harachte. In one of the earliest cities, built on the east side of the Nile, and a little to the north of modern Cairo, they erected his first temple. The city was called On, later named by the Greeks Heliopolis, the City of the Sun. Here the Egyptians established the priesthood of Ra, a sect that became famous for its knowledge of the occult sciences, the practice of magic, and the laws of medicine and astrology. It was with them the youthful Moses was brought up, and it was by the art he had mastered in the priesthood of On that enabled him later to put into practice his magic before Pharaoh, which finally led to the liberation of the Israelites.

Value of Tears.
A Greek philosopher being asked why he wept for the death of his son, since the sorrow was in vain, replied, "I weep on that account." And his answer became his wisdom. It is only for sophists to contend that we, whose eyes contain the fountain of tears, need never give way to them. It would be unwise not to do so on some occasions. Sorrow unlocks them in her balmy moods. The first bursts may be bitter and overwhelming; but the soil on which they pour would be worse without them. They refresh the fever of the soul—they dry misery which parches the countenance into furrows, and renders us liable to our most terrible "fleshquakes."—James Henry Leigh Hunt.

Severe Tests for Searchlights.
The searchlights made use of in warfare and a few other purposes are put to a severe test before they are regarded as completed. Elaborate instruments are used to measure the intensity of the beam, but its diameter is measured by an immense "yard stick" located 2,300 yards away from the light. A long narrow stretch of lumber supported on trestles has divisions at regular intervals just like those of the measuring stick and when the beam is directed at this structure, it is easy to measure the diameter. In a small house at one end is a photometer by which the intensity of the light may be measured at any point.

NINE MONTHS TO FIX TARIFF BILL

SO ASSERTS CHAIRMAN FORDNEY, AND OTHERS BELIEVE
MORE TIME WILL BE NEEDED.

ECONOMIC CONDITIONS UPSET

Import Schedules Must Be Carefully Adjusted to Meet Them—Measure as Enacted Probably Will Be Highly Protective.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

Washington.—Joseph W. Fordney, chairman of the ways and means committee of the house, has declared in a public statement that it requires nine months of careful consideration and debate to enact proper tariff legislation. This means, if the Michigan representative is right, that it will be some time next October or November before the Fordney-Penrose tariff bill, as it will be called, will be signed by the president.

It is probable that in fixing nine months as the required time for proper consideration of tariff legislation, Mr. Fordney is taking into consideration the various views of what constitutes a proper tariff that are held by men in his own party, which in the next congress will have a huge majority in both houses. Except for the time taken in opposite debate, Mr. Fordney probably gives but little consideration to the forthcoming antagonism of the Democrats in congress to such a tariff bill as his committee will present, but the chairman is obliged to take sharp notice of the opposition of some of the men within his own party ranks.

When the chairman says that nine months are required to enact tariff legislation which from his viewpoint would be adequate, he includes in the allotted time the days and weeks that are given over to hearings prior to the framing of the bill in committee.

Longer Time May Be Required.

Mr. Fordney has some reason for his statement that nine months are required for tariff legislation. Tariff bills in the past have consumed that length of time before they finally found their way to enactment. Some members of congress, Democrats as well as Republicans, are declaring today that, considering the fact that it took nine months to put some of the tariff bills of the past through, it probably will take at least eleven months and perhaps a year to put the bills of the present through.

The whole world is upset economically today. The members of congress, however wise they may be in other matters, do not know any better than men outside of congress just what the labor conditions in Europe are to be in six months from now. Neither do they know what is to happen to Germany in the industrial field, nor do they know whether England and France will be heavy bidders for trade in our markets.

England, Scotland, Wales and Ireland together lost 900,000 men, killed in battle. England has her man power problem, but it is offset to some extent by woman power, which during the war came into its own, and by methods for maintaining production even with fewer hands to do the producing. In France, which lost at least 1,500,000, killed in battle and many more men so crippled that they cannot do the work that they once did, the problem is a difficult one. France has a huge work of reconstruction ahead of her, and it may be some time before the exports from France will reach the volume of some years ago. Today, with the high cost of living still prevailing, there is no great market for the products of France which come under the head of luxuries and which once were imported into this country in huge quantities.

The troubled conditions of the world and the necessity of adjusting the tariff schedules to meet them, no matter how they may develop in the future, will make deep study of all the angles of the case imperative, and this means probably that the members of the ways and means committee will be compelled to spend much time in the actual framing of the tariff measure after the hearings are concluded.

Will Be Highly Protective.

It, of course, must go without saying that the coming tariff legislation will be highly protective in its provisions. Chairman Fordney of the ways and means committee is known in the house as "the highest protectionist of them all." His own views will necessarily be modified by the views of his colleagues, but in a general way it can be said under the very nature of things, party and political, that the coming tariff legislation will keep the protection mark high.

In the ranks of the Republican party in the house of representatives and also in the senate there is a group of moderate tariff Republicans. They are either the same men or the successors of the men, who during the days of the debate on the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill, tried to keep the schedules below the mark set by the committees on ways and means and finance. The high protection Republicans in house and senate are in the majority, and they probably will have their will, but it may be that modifications of the measure will be forced by the opposition of the milder protectionists.

Telephony or Teletaphy.

The telephone gets blamed for a whole lot of things and the gentle operator often gets hawled out by the irate subscriber or the fellow who is borrowing somebody else's phone. On the other hand the telephone and the gentle operator are not always credited with all they should be and they deserve mention when they add telephony to their other accomplishments. That must explain this incident. A few days ago a subscriber at Jeffersonville wished to telephone to Mr. Smith, and was told at his office that he had just gone to the bank. The subscriber called the bank number while actively thinking of Mr. Smith; the telephone operator—or her subconscious self, let us say—plugged in at quite another number, of course. "Is this the bank?" "No, this is the newspaper office." "Sorry, I was looking for Mr. Smith." "Well, wait a minute; he has just stepped in." How's that for "service"?—Indianapolis News.

A True Story.

Secretary Lawson Purdy of the Charity Organization society, said in a recent address:

"Unorganized giving usually does more harm than good. Let me tell you a true story.

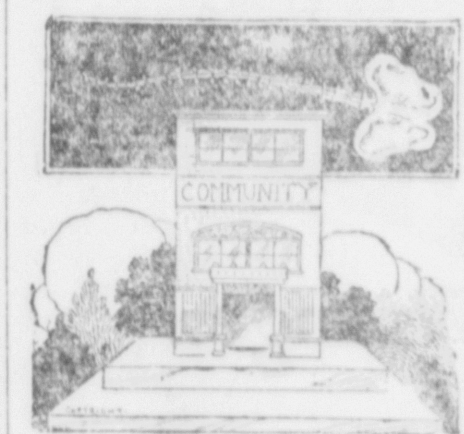

"A lady last week besought her husband with tears in her eyes to buy her a set of near-coney furs, which she had seen in a Fifth avenue shop marked down to $1,000.

"My love," her husband said, "I can't do it. This very day I subscribed $1,000 to save poor dear old Sinnickson from bankruptcy.

"The lady a few days later rushed into her husband's office in great excitement.

"Jack, what do you think?" she cried. "You know that $1,000 set of near-coney furs I wanted you to buy for me? Well, I saw them on Mrs. Sinnickson in Fifth avenue this afternoon."

How Many Colors for a Section?

Not long ago a train started out of Grand Central in two sections. After running a few miles the first section lost time, and the second, running ahead, was ordered to put up green signals and run as first section. As this train approached the next tower the dispatcher asked the signalman if the engineer had put up signals. The signalman replied, by telephone, "Yes, he just put up the green and blew."—New York Central Magazine.

Making Folks Happy

Although some people will tell you that money is the root of all evil, and although those who have it do not speak of it with scorn, every man and every woman knows that money is a producer of happiness.

Making folks happy is the most worth-while work that any man or any institution can do in this world, and that is exactly what this bank does.

When we lend money for legitimate business purposes, we are helping the borrower to make money and adding to his happiness.

When we induce people to deposit money in this bank, we are discouraging foolish spending, encouraging thrift, and adding to our depositors' happiness.

As a general rule, you will find people who have bank accounts are happier than those who don't.

When you choose your bank, choose this one, because the service we offer is combined with a sincere desire to make your connection a happy one.

Lodge Activities

The Elks lodge is one of the most active in Brainerd's fraternal world and according to District Deputy Robert, one of the most active in the northern jurisdiction.

The building committee has incorporated and stock subscriptions are flowing in. It is proposed to incorporate for and to sell $100,000 stock. If conditions are suitable building may be under way by May of 1922. The site owned by the Elks at the northeast corner of Sixth and Laurel streets was acquired from F.
A. Farrar and is being rapidly paid for.

Bylaws of the lodge have been revised and approved by the judiciary committee.

A drill team is being drilled by Eugene White. Drill time is Sunday afternoons at Elks hall.

The drum corps is being taught by O. M. Risberg, Sunday afternoons
at Elks hall.

A big campaign has just been put under way to raise money and the Elks will dispose of a Ford Sedan, $300 Brunswick phonograph and in this financing campaign.

The lodge is preparing for the state convention to be held in St.

5 SMALL FIRES IN 24 HOURS HERE

Fire Department of Brainerd Kept as Busy as Any Detachment in Twin Cities

PROMPT WORK PUTS OUT FIRES

Last Blaze Was an Unusual One.
Over-heated Stove Setting Fire
to Refrigerator Car

From 6 o'clock last evening until about 10 o'clock this morning the fire department responded to five alarms which made a somewhat strenuous program.

The first fire at about 6 p. m. was at 416 North Broadway where the department found the roof on fire and extinguished it with chemicals. The damage was slight.

The second fire was at 217 North 16th street at the home of Thomas Willis. This was a roof fire evidently caused by the sparks from some chimney.

The next alarm came from 999
Main street where about 1/2 ton of hay was burned. There was a considerable blaze here but apart from some damage to the side of a garage
and the burning of the hay no damage resulted.

The fourth alarm took the department to the store of John Carlson and Son where some refuse in the crate in front of the store was on fire. This was soon extinguished and there was no damage apart from the effect of the heat on the window.

At about 10 a. m. an alarm was received by messenger from the Third street railway crossing where refrigerator car No. 98757 was on fire. This fire resulted from an overheated oil stove. Water was turned on and the fire soon extinguished. The damage did not amount to much.

METHODIST CHURCH GOOD-WILL WORK

Over 1000 Garments Have Been Sold by the Workers and Over 200
Pairs of Shoes

ARE IN THE LIBRARY BASEMENT

During Winter Call for Underwear
Was Heavy—All Clothing Carefully Fumigated

On invitation of Rev. E. A. Cooke, pastor the Methodist Episcopal church, the Dispatch covered the Good-will industry which has its location in the basement of the public library and is conducted under the auspices of the church already named.

On Thursday afternoon the workers were not present because the supplies upon which to work have been so reduced that there is not much left to do until new supplies are secured. Nevertheless, the work was thoroughly outlined by Rev. Cooke who is fully acquainted with its many varied phases having studied it elsewhere and practiced it here and elsewhere.

The Methodist church has taken up this Good-will industry in about 20 places; it has been started by other denominations in various places and in some cases the movement is interdenominational. The Salvation Army has done this work on a big scale and in such cities as Chicago it has been largely developed. Some city mission organizations have also taken it up and enlarged the work until it became quite an industry.

The story of the work in Brainerd begins with the plans lying behind the canvass last fall and the canvass itself. The solicitation brought in more supplies than the committee had dared to expect and the tables and racks were filled up again and again. Over 1000 garments have been sold and over 200
pairs of shoes.

The local work began through certain persons feeling that something might be done to clothe children who could not attend day school or Sunday school because their parents could not clothe them so that they might go. It was thought that clothing might be provided at little cost and the children prepared for school. It was the purpose of the committee in charge to give nothing away. They knew that this sometimes results in injury to the persons so helped. They wished to help people help themselves by teaching them to keep their sense of independence intact. However while nothing is given away some of the articles have been sold for very little; in fact just enough to avoid donating them.

A story is told of one woman who went to the room and after looking around said, "I didn't know there was anything like this in town." She went on to say that she had seven children and that for three years they had bought no new clothing because they could not afford it at the high prices. She told of how they had remade their garments, patched them and altered them in all manner of ways until they were completely worn out. The woman and her seven children got clothing and carried out load after load of the supplies.

Some of those who have purchased were on the Associated Charities list before the meritorious work began and are now off the list and self supporting.

During this winter there has been a great call for underclothing which the committee in charge could not supply. Children's clothing has been much in demand and some of the merchants helped to take care of this demand by donating considerable quantities of clothing to the committee in charge.

In larger cities where the work is thoroughly organized unemployed
persons are taken in and put to work for wages. The shoes that are sent in are repaired in this way, and not only is clothing and shoes etc. produced cheaply but work is provided for the unemployed. In Brainerd it is hoped to provide work in these ways as the undertaking grows. Shoes have been sold here at from 5 cents up to $2 per pair, while the average price has been around 75 cents. Suits of clothes have sold as high as $5 and at prices much below
this figure.

Inasmuch as the time of the year
is coming when people move, do house cleaning, and tear up generally, the committee expects to hire a woman who will go round and solicit clothing, shoes, etc., to be brought in and stored for next season. This woman will be paid for her work.

In telling of the work we may say that the clothing is taken to a fumigatory after it is received and after this first operation is stored for use.
And everything has a value, which was illustrated when one lady offered $1 for a sack of rags.

The pastor of the church having the work in hand suggested that it may be expanded in Brainerd. It is hoped that during the next year the domestic science department of the schools will be able to use more materials which will be provided by the committee to be made up and sold.
The goods are not to be sold at such prices that a profit results but only at such prices that something may be realized to be used to expand the work. It is thought that at an early date furniture may be picked up and repaired and sold as is done in places where the work is further advanced.

Up to this time the work has been in the hands of the Methodist church, but other churches are not excluded

ST. CLOUD WON FROM LOCALS 22 TO 12

In the basketball games Friday evening Brainerd had the satisfaction of winning the first game from St. Cloud by a score of 15 to 13. This was the game between the second teams. But, in the big game in which the first teams clashed, Brainerd went down to defeat by a score of 22
to 12.

and co-operation would not be rejected. To sum it up the work is so organized that it results in an exchange between the folks who have something that they cannot use and the folks who can use that something,
but do not have it."

MONTHLY BULLETIN

To be Issued by the Chamber of Commerce, Under Direction of the Secretary

The secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, Francis B. Randall, presented an interesting matter to the members of the publicity committee when they met last week. It was to the effect that he thought it would be a fine plan to get out a monthly bulletin of this character; first the front page would contain the name of the organization and the name of the bulletin with the names of the officers of the organization and the names of the advisory board. Beneath these would come three or four columns of items from adjacent towns. Inside would be a full page of snappy items of interest to readers and dealing with various phases of the organization's work. The third page would be devoted to agriculture, labor and commerce. Advertisements would cover the back page of the bulletin.

The publicity committee decided that the secretary might go ahead with the preparation of the bulletin with the understanding that the advertisement should cover the cost.
This he proceeded to do and having mapped out the pages, he obtained prices and then went out and secured the necessary advertising to cover
the cost of printing, mailing, etc.
This he succeeded in doing Thursday afternoon and the bulletin will be ready for distribution by about the 15th of the month.

Chiropractic For Sciatica

The nerve fibre, like any other tissue or organ is supplied by many other nerve fibres. These carry impulses of heat, of nutrition, of expansion and transmit from it certain sensations.
Let us assume that there is excessive expression of heat in the Sciatic Nerve. The result will be inflammation there, and we call the condition SCIATICA. Pressure on these nerves cause this. The only place this pressure can happen is at the spinal column. Your Chiropractor can adjust this to normal position with his bare hands, he uses no mechanical instruments.

PROMOTION DENIED TO GEN. LIGGETT

CONGRESS PROBABLY WILL TAKE THE SAME ACTION IN CASES OF OTHER ARMY OFFICERS.

ITS ATTITUDE IS PECULIAR

Names of the Commanding Officers
Who Led Our Troops Successfully in France Were Omitted From Nearly Every Government Report.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

Washington.—Maj. Gen. Hunter Liggett, U. S. army, who as a corps chief commanded a million men in the field in France, has been refused promotion in congress to the rank of lieutenant general on the active list. General Liggett will go on the retired list on March 21, and it is possible, and perhaps probable, that congress when he leaves, will give him the rank of lieutenant general to balm his days of retirement.

Other chieftains of the United States army, some of whom fought in France and others who did high service in this country, also will be denied promotion while they still are in the active service and when, of course, promotion and the compliment of it count.

Among these officers to whom denial of promotion probably is to come are Maj. Gen. Robert Lee Bullard, who, like Liggett, commanded a corps on the fighting line; Gen. Peyton C. March, chief of staff of the army; Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, whose foresight in virtually forcing preliminary education for young officers aided materially in the work of quick victory for the United States; Maj. Gen. Enoch H. Crowder, who prepared the draft plans and brought a big army of civilians into the field under what was called conscription, and did it without any of the troubles that were predicted; and Maj. Gen. Joseph T. Dickman, who commanded the first corps in the Argonne and later the army of occupation in Germany, a command which should have carried with it the rank of a full general of the forces.

Their Names Omitted From Reports.
From virtually every government report which deals with the successful operations of the American troops abroad the names of the commanding officers were omitted. To some men this has looked almost like "a conspiracy of suppression." Of course this charge is denied, but up to date no one has been able to determine just why it is that the men under whose direction advances were made and battles won, have not been able to get their names into those of the government reports which the people read.

The names of the commanding officers who served in this country are better known to the American people, apparently, than the names of those who served on the fighting line, with the notable exception, of course, of Gen. John J. Pershing. It is known definitely that, being human, these American army officers of rank and deeds, while not being resentful feel somewhat disappointed because the veil has been drawn over their acts of fighting accomplishment.

In the British and French histories of the war which thus far have appeared, the names of Pershing, Liggett, Bullard, Dickman, Summerall and others loom large. The British and French people know today all about the commanding deeds of the American generals in battle, men of the con-eral rank from brigadier up. The American people alone largely are in the dark.

There unquestionably are reasons why congress has declined to recommend that Hunter Liggett be made a lieutenant general on the active list for the few days that he is to serve before retirement. The reason has nothing to do with the undeniably high service of General Liggett in the field, but it has to do with the feeling in congress that if something is done for one man something must be done for others, and that pressure will be brought to bear from localities throughout the United States to have something done for men who possibly may not deserve it. Congress, therefore, seems to be willing to deny reward to those who have earned it in order to avoid the annoyance of being asked for reward for some men who perhaps do not deserve it.

Inquiry May Bring Promotions.

It is said that the senate is willing to go ahead with the promotions, and that the chief opposition is to be found in the house. It may be, and it seems probable, that later on congress will undertake an investigation of the cases of a number of ranking officers of the American army who, after seemingly effective service in the field, suddenly were relieved from their commands and sent back to the United States. If this investigation shall take place the chances are that all the facts concerning all the commanding officers will be learned, and then promotion possibly will be made in accordance with the positive information which is developed.

Times and methods have changed for some reason or other. Congress could not do enough for the general officers of the war between the states. Today congress, at least so it seems, is trying to do as little as it can for the ranking officers of the conflict which by order of congress itself is called on the Victory medals, "The Great War for Civilization."

China's Metal Imports.

The value of China's metal imports was $76,931,631 in 1919, as compared with $21,619,174 in 1913. The advance in value coincides with an equal advance in quantity. Copper ingots were imported in very much larger quantities than ever before and the value was more than 100 times as great as in 1913. The copper imported is used almost exclusively by the mills. Manufactured iron shows considerable gains. There was a large increase in the importations of tin in slabs. This is a product of the Kwantung mines, and is reimported from Hong Kong after having been exported there from China.

PERSHING LIKELY TO GO TO FRANCE

WASHINGTON BELIEVES HE IS CERTAIN TO BE APPOINTED
AMBASSADOR TO PARIS.

ACCORDS WITH HIS DESIRES

Diplomatic Post in Country Where He Served as Soldier and Which Likes Him Would Be Grateful to the General.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

Washington.—Army and congressional circles are strong in the belief today that Gen. John J. Pershing, commanding officer of the A. E. F., in the great war, is to be given the post of ambassador to France by Warren G. Harding.

This matter today is, of course, one of rumor only, but rumor in this case seems to have a better basis than usually is the case with fleeting stories of coming preferment. The appointment of General Pershing to a foreign embassy would relieve some rather embarrassing situations so far as the future of the War department is concerned.

It is understood here that General Pershing's ambitions, if they may be called such, do not concern themselves with appointments within the army, or, what is the same thing, within the War department. He does not want to be secretary of war, nor yet chief of staff, although for both of these places he has been mentioned more or less prominently. Men who ought to know say General Pershing's desires have to do with the ambassadorial duty in the foreign field in which he served as a soldier.

The general of the army and the president-elect of the United States have been friends for some years. The former was the guest of the latter at Marlon not long since. Pershing, of course, is in a position which makes it proper that he be given recognition, and almost mandatory that he be given the place which he would like to hold. No one thinks that the general has asked for the embassy to France, but that he would like it no one in the least doubts, and in fact it is, as has been said, believed in Washington that the appointment is to come to him.

Herrick Also Is Mentioned.

It might be that in looking over the field of foreign appointments Mr. Harding would prefer to give General Pershing some other appointment than that for service in France, but France is the place naturally which appeals to the general. Ordinarily speaking, the court of St. James is considered a more important post than Paris, but it readily can be understood here why the general of the American army would prefer service in France.

There have been intimations from time to time that Mr. Harding desires to send Myron T. Herrick back to France. Mr. Herrick was our ambassador to that country at the outbreak of the European war. He endeared himself to the French officials and to the French people generally by the sympathetic nature of the work which he did, although, of course, maintaining absolutely the rules and regulations which should govern the conduct of an ambassador of a neutral nation. Herrick is one of the best loved names in France today. Herrick is from Ohio.

Those here who seem to know about the situation say that it may be difficult for Mr. Harding to decide between Herrick and Pershing, but the latter has the prestige of war service in France and the prestige also which comes from a possible more intimate acquaintance with French officials and with French ways than has Mr. Herrick, notwithstanding the friendly relations which existed between him and the representatives of the French government.

There is nothing in the law to prevent an officer of the United States army on the retired list becoming an ambassador of his country. A direct quotation from a finding of the attorney general and the judge advocate general of the United States is this: "A retired officer may hold any federal office to which he may be elected by the people, or appointed by the President."

Of Course Pershing Likes France.

It is easy enough to understand why General Pershing probably would like to return to France in the capacity of a representative of his country. The human element enters into this matter strongly. He was in France in command of the American expeditionary forces virtually from the time of our entrance into the great war. He has hundreds of friends in that country. It will not be necessary for the French people to ask: "Who is this new ambassador from America?" Pershing. It is said, like the life in France, and of course this means the life in France apart from war-time activities. It has its social aspect.

When General Pershing returned from France he intimated that he would like to retire from active army service as soon as the authorities felt that they could allow him to go upon the retired list. Under a congressional act he can retire at any time, and retirement will be necessary if he shall be offered and shall accept the place of an ambassador.

Consolation in Fatigue Couch.

It will be a revelation to many to find how sure an aid electricity has been and still is in troubles small and great, from the neurasthenic with logorrhea and the woman who is "so ill as to think she is ill when she is not," to the despondent, mutilated, war-spoiled soldier with increasing paralysis, says the New York Medical Journal in a review of Dr. J. Curtis Webb's "Electrotherapy."

It can soothe and banish all those everyday attacks of headache, those neuritis, and make all nerves approach the happy condition of the ninth one. Only those who have tested the restfulness of what is sometimes termed the fatigue couch can appreciate its consoling power.

Shark's Usefulness Ended.

A shark, in Saigon harbor, Indo-China, failing to take a baited hook, was fed a large piece of pork containing chlorinated fresh lime. The action of the water on the lime caused an explosion which threw pieces of shark meat 300 yards away in the unapproved thickets.

Had Equally Wrong Ideas.

A village barytone condemned one of the most famous singers of the day because he was afraid to hold a high note and left it almost as soon as he took it. The art of the great singer in using his voice to interpret the composition did not appeal to the local barytone who made use of compositions to display his voice. He was judging in the same way as the editor of the newspaper who looked for an interesting story in a work on singing and who was unaware that those who wanted to improve their singing were interested in being instructed.—New York Sun.

Ancient Weather Vanes.

The idea of indicating which way the wind blows by means of a vane does not seem to commend itself especially to modern architects. The most interesting specimens of weather vanes must be referred to the days when chivalry and ecclesiasticism, both lavish of heraldic or symbolic decoration, were supreme. Effigies of many creatures have done duty as vanes. Man himself has not escaped. The female form divine, even, has not been spared this indignity. Such a sentiment as is expressed in the sentence, "Woman fickle as the wind," may have been in the mind of Theodosius the Great when he erected at Constantinople, in the fourth century, the vane called the "Lady of the Winds."

Advertisers in the Daily Dispatch

Now get the same cut service as the big city dailies.

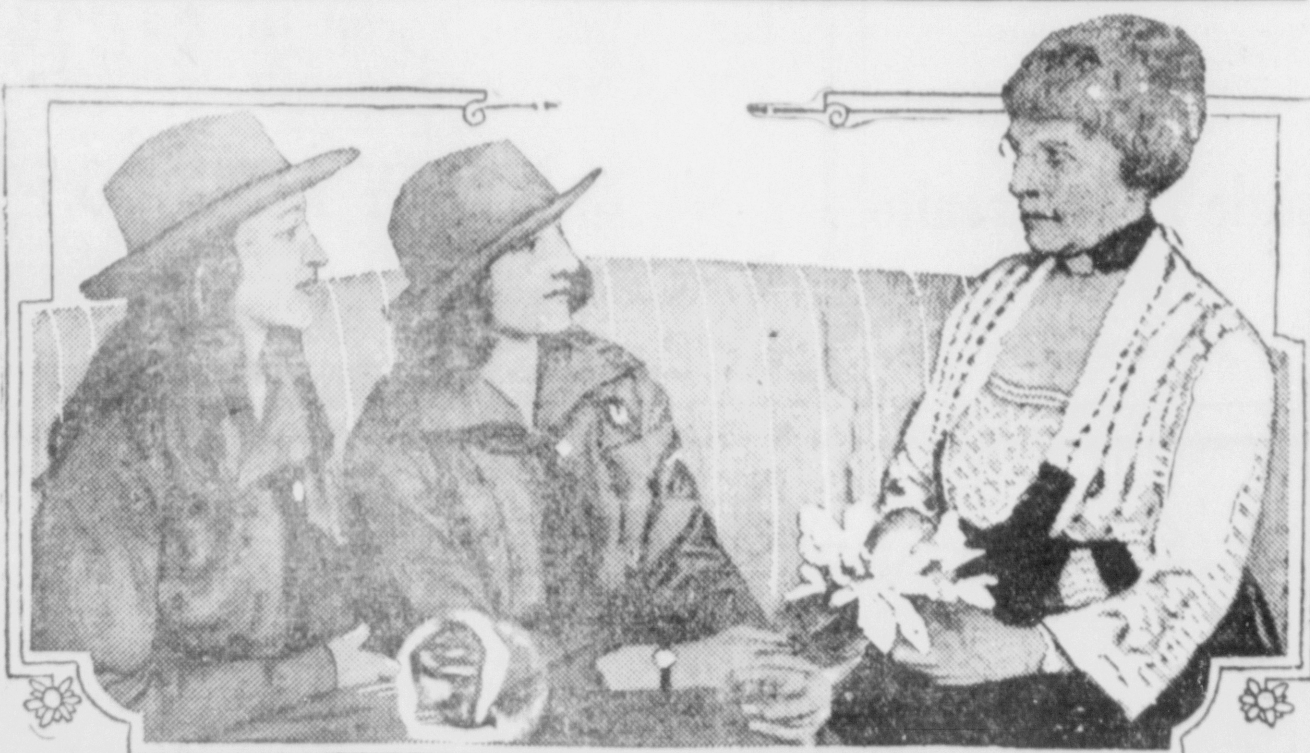

We have made arrangements with the Murray Illustrated Advertising Company of New York, for the furnishing of cuts for advertising purposes absolutely free to our patrons. This service is the best in America and has as clients some of the largest newspapers published.

Never before has it been possible for a paper to furnish this service without a considerable added outlay on the part of the advertiser, and even now it is only offered to the paper recognized by advertisers and readers as the leader in its section.

The Dispatch buys the cuts; the advertiser pays for the space in the paper at the same rate as for other advertising. Many of our patrons have already taken advantage of this offer and others are invited to do so.

We will be glad to explain the matter more fully

Mrs. Harding Makes a Wish

Mrs. Warren G. Harding, at right, tells Beatrice Cline and Gertrude Nathan how much she regrets that there were no girl scouts when she was a child.

FIRST Lady of the Land, Mrs. Warren G. Harding, has assured a delegation of Girl Scouts that she wished herself fourteen years old and a member of their organization!

It was during Mrs. Harding's shopping visit to New York preceding the inaugural that she was notified by a delegation of two Girl Scouts that she had been chosen Honorary President of the organization. Although every minute of Mrs. Harding's time was crowded, she received the committee consisting of Beatrice Cline, fourteen years old, and Gertrude Nathan, fifteen, at the Ritz-Carlton, made them comfortable while they delivered the notification, posed with them for photographs and made them sit with her while they chatted pleasantly. The President's wife thrilled the girls with an invitation to the White House.

"I would be perfectly delighted if the Girl Scouts would come down to Washington during my sojourn at the White House," she said, accepting a bouquet, tendered on behalf of 85,312 Girl Scouts. Gertrude delivered the greetings of Mrs. Jane Deeter Rippin, National Director of the organization.

"I am sincerely and genuinely interested in the Girl Scout movement," said Mrs. Harding. "I think you all have a wonderful future in store. What I wish is: that I were your age and could start life over again as a Girl Scout."

Two very proud and happy girls took away this message of the new President's wife to the girls of America.
